

THE FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

GOVERNMENT AND COMMUNITY SERVICE

Brian Ray, Ph.D. and Ed.S. in Higher Education and Administration

Dr. Brian D. Ray, Ph.D., is currently an Associate Dean & Director of the Heavener School of Business and Lecturer in Leadership and Ethics at the Management Department at the University of Florida. Before becoming Associate Dean and Director, he was the Director of Student Services at Warrington College of Business Administration at the University of Florida. Dr. Ray received both his Ph.D. and Ed.S. in Higher Education and Administration from Florida State University. Later, Dr. Ray's potential for making substantive contributions to higher education was recognized when he completed the Management Development Program at the Harvard Graduate School of Education. Dr. Ray has also received extensive military training including earning a Master of Strategic Studies at the United States Army War College, attending the United States Army Command and General Staff College, and completion of the United States Army Combined Arms and Services Staff School. Dr. Ray is currently the Command Chaplain of the largest command in the Army Reserves, the 377th Theater Sustainment Command. Dr. Ray has received numerous awards and recognition during his military services, including the General Douglas MacArthur Leadership Award in the United States Army – one of the top leadership recognitions for company grade officers – and a Bronze Star Medal awarded for Exemplary Service in Afghanistan and Iraq.